Caveats about Accuracy

Community Research Partners (CRP) has been very careful in collecting, analyzing and presenting data from a variety of sources to prepare this report. Although CRP has judged its data sources to be reliable, it was not possible to authenticate all data. If careful readers of the report discover data errors or typographical errors, CRP and the Columbus Council on World Affairs welcome this feedback and will incorporate corrections into future updates of the report.

Please report feedback to Devin Keithley at 614-737-2961 or dkeithley@researchpartners.org.

Introduction

About the Global Report

The Global Report 2012 represents the first edition of the Global Report project, a research project designed to inventory and describe the extent to which central Ohio is a “global” community. As part of their mission to create global awareness, the Columbus Council on World Affairs (CCWA) wanted to provide statistics and information on global assets and resources that can be used by the community for a variety of purposes, including: economic development, site selection/talent attraction and retention, a business and community leaders’ guide, and public education.

Since August 2010, CCWA has been working with Community Research Partners (CRP)—along with project funders and advisors, Columbus2020!, the Columbus Foundation, and the Mid-Ohio Regional Planning Commission (MORPC)—to design and implement this report. CRP is a nonprofit research center based in Columbus that strengthens communities through data, information, and knowledge.

Format of the Report

The indicators in this report are organized into four sections:

- 1 Citizenship & Diversity: indicators of immigration and naturalization, passport issuance, inter-country adoption, and foreign-born, ethnic and religious diversity
- 2 Language & Education: indicators of linguistic diversity, multilingualism and linguistic isolation, language in schools, and college enrollment from overseas
- 3 Residency & Service Abroad: indicators of study abroad, international volunteerism, expatriation, and overseas military service
- 4 Commerce & Employment: indicators of foreign business ownership, global nonprofit organizations, air travel, international trade, work visas and green cards, and remittances

The indicators are presented in tables, maps, and graphs. The 98 tables in this report are color-coded by type of table (see Geography on the next page for definitions and lists of metros):

- County data (purple): Data are organized by county, showing the totals for the 8-county Columbus metropolitan statistical area, as well as the 13-county Greater Columbus area.
- How the Columbus Metro compares to 15 U.S. metros (light blue): Columbus metro-level data are benchmarked and ranked against 15 U.S. metropolitan areas that were selected based on: their similarity in population size to Columbus; whether they include a state capital. The rank is shown in parentheses, and a T designates a tie.
- How the Columbus Metro compares to 15 world metros (green): Columbus metro-level data are benchmarked and ranked against 15 world cities that were selected based on: their similarity in population size to Columbus; whether they include the capital city of a first-order political subdivision (eg. state, province, etc.); whether they are sister cities of Columbus; and whether they are part of a G-20 economy. The rank is shown in parentheses, and a T designates a tie.
- How Ohio compares to the other 49 states (blue): State data for Ohio are ranked against data for the other 49 states, and in some cases the District of Columbia, when no data were available at the county or metro levels. The rank is shown in parentheses, and a T designates a tie.
- Regional list data (orange or red): Regional data for the 13-county Greater Columbus area (see Geography below for definitions) are presented as either top 10 lists or ranked lists of all categories representing 1% or more of the total.
- Supplemental lists (dark blue): Complete alphabetized inventories of some of the data in the report are found in the Appendix.

In addition to this report, CRP has provided 50 country profiles with country-specific data for Greater Columbus as an online resource at: www.globalcolumbus.org.

Geography

Most of the data in the report are collected for a 13-county region described here as “Greater Columbus.” This geography was selected because it encompasses all of the counties served by Columbus2020! and MORPC. The region is made up of the following central Ohio counties: Delaware, Fairfield, Fayette, Franklin, Knox, Licking, Logan, Madison, Marion, Morrow, Pickaway, Ross, and Union.

However, for certain indicators and tables, such as the metro comparison tables and any indicators for which data were available only at the metro-level, data are collected for the 8-county Columbus metropolitan statistical area, defined by the U.S. Census Bureau as the following counties: Delaware, Fairfield, Franklin, Licking, Madison, Morrow, Pickaway, and Union.

The 15 Metropolitan Statistical Areas (MSAs) chosen for comparison and benchmarking are:

Austin, TX	Austin-Round Rock-San Marcos, TX MSA

Appendix: Additional notes on indicators

Section 1: Citizenship & Diversity

1.01 Foreign-born population by county

1.04–1.08 Foreign-born diversity; Children of immigrants by county

1.10 Immigrants entering the U.S. 2000 or after by county

1.12 Naturalized U.S. citizens by county

1.18–1.21 Ethnic diversity

NOTE: The Global Report uses three different types of estimates from the Census Bureau's American Community Survey (ACS): 1-year, 3-year, and 5-year estimates. The ACS only provides 1-year estimates for geographies with a population of 65,000 or higher. For smaller geographies, the ACS samples too few households to provide reliable 1-year estimates. For these geographies, several years of data are pooled together to create reliable 3-year estimates or 5-year estimates. Because at least 7 counties in the 13-county region have populations less than 65,000, regional totals required using multi-year estimates.

Another reason for using multi-year estimates is the increased statistical reliability of data for small population subgroups, such as those born in a specific country or reporting a specific ancestry. Single-year estimates have too large a margin of error to report totals for small population subgroups. However, the level of precision improves dramatically as the margin of error decreases with 3- and 5-year estimates.

1.01–1.07 Foreign-born population; Foreign-born diversity

1.18–1.21 Ethnic diversity

NOTE: The Global Report includes self-report data from the U.S. Census Bureau's American Community Survey to describe the diversity of the Greater Columbus population. Some indicators in this report make use of data on the foreign-born population, while others include data on ancestry or ethnic origin (this is clearly identified on each table). There is overlap between these two data sets, but they are not the same. The following are the Census definitions:

Foreign-born: any person born outside the United States, Puerto Rico, Guam, the U.S. Virgin Islands, or Northern Marianas; this includes anyone born abroad to a U.S. citizen parent or parents, naturalized U.S. citizens, lawful permanent residents (immigrants), temporary migrants (such as international students), humanitarian migrants (such as refugees and asylees), and undocumented immigrants; does not include native-born children of immigrants

Ancestry or ethnic origin: the ethnic origin, descent, roots, heritage, or place of birth of the person or of the person's ancestors; this includes both the foreign-born and native-born populations

The Census reports Somali in the ethnicity category, but does not report Somalia in the foreign-born category. Counts of the Somali foreign-born population are included as part of the "Other Eastern African" group.

1.04, 1.05 Foreign-born diversity based on country of birth

1.18, 1.19 Ethnic diversity based on first ancestry reported

1.22, 1.23 Religious diversity based on congregational membership

NOTE: A diversity index is a mathematical measure of diversity in a community. It describes the community's composition in terms of the relative proportions of different population sub-groups and measures the evenness with which individuals are distributed among these groups. Consider two communities that both have a population of 100 made up of 10 demographic groups (ie. ethnicity, race, etc.). In the first community, each group contains 10 individuals—the 100 individuals are evenly spread across the 10 groups. In the second community, nine of the groups contain only one person each, while the tenth group contains the remaining 91 people. The first community is more diverse and would have the highest possible diversity index (1.00). The second community is less diverse and would have a much lower index (0.17).

1.04, 1.05 Foreign-born diversity based on country of birth

NOTE: The foreign-born diversity index is calculated by subtracting from 1 the sum of the squared percentages for "n" countries of birth of the foreign-born population, ranging from 0 (a completely homogeneous population with no diversity) to 1 (the same number of individuals in every group, or maximum diversity), a.k.a. the Gini-Simpson Index, where "n" is total number of categories reported by the U.S. Census Bureau. See below for explanation of groupings and list of categories reported.

Section 2: Language & Education

2.01–2.08 Linguistic diversity; Multilingualism; Linguistic isolation

NOTE: The Global Report uses three different types of estimates from the Census Bureau's American Community Survey (ACS): 1-year, 3-year, and 5-year estimates. The ACS only provides 1-year estimates for geographies with a population of 65,000 or higher. For smaller geographies, the ACS samples too few households to provide reliable 1-year estimates. For these geographies, several years of data are pooled together to create reliable 3-year estimates or 5-year estimates. Because at least 7 counties in the 13-county region have populations less than 65,000, regional totals required using multi-year estimates.

Another reason for using multi-year estimates is the increased statistical reliability of data for small population subgroups, such as those born in speaking a specific language at home. Single-year estimates have too large a margin of error to report totals for small population subgroups. However, the level of precision improves dramatically as the margin of error decreases with 3- and 5-year estimates.

2.01, 2.02 Linguistic diversity based on language spoken at home

NOTE: A diversity index is a mathematical measure of diversity in a community. It describes the community's composition in terms of the relative proportions of different population sub-groups and measures the evenness with which individuals are distributed among these groups. Consider two communities that both have a population of 100 made up of 10 demographic groups (ie. ethnicity, race, etc.). In the first community, each group contains 10 individuals—the 100 individuals are evenly spread across the 10 groups. In the second community, nine of the groups contain only one person each, while the tenth group contains the remaining 91 people. The first community is more diverse and would have the highest possible diversity index (1.00). The second community is less diverse and would have a much lower index (0.17).

NOTE: The linguistic diversity index is calculated by subtracting from 1 the sum of the squared percentages for "n" languages spoken at home by the population age 5 and over, ranging from 0 (a completely homogeneous population with no diversity) to 1 (the same number of individuals in every group, or maximum diversity), a.k.a. the Gini-Simpson Index, where "n" is total number of categories by the U.S. Census Bureau. ## Section 4: Commerce & Employment

4.01–4.06 Foreign-owned businesses

4.09 Top foreign Global 500 companies operating locally by total revenue

Methodology: The foreign-owned business data were compiled from 5 different sources in the following order: (a) Dun and Bradstreet's Million Dollar Database; (b) the Ohio Department of Development's August 2011 International Corporate Investment in Ohio Operations report; (c) Uniworld Business Publications' Foreign Firms Operating in the United States database; (d) an existing list compiled by The Columbus Region; and (e) other web research.

Dun and Bradstreet: Due to the large number of records in the Million Dollar Database, several filters were applied to pare down the list to a more manageable size that still gave the best chance of finding the most foreign-owned companies. The following filters were applied: (a) subsidiaries; (b) non-subsidiaries with more than $1,000,000 in corporate-wide sales; (c) non-subsidiary publicly-traded companies with less than $1,000,000. From that list, records were pulled showing a "global ultimate parent" outside the United States.

Other web research: Businesses with multiple locations in the 13-county Greater Columbus area required further web research using Google and company websites to locate the addresses of all branch locations.

4.13–4.15 Global nonprofit organizations

NOTE: A global nonprofit organization is defined here as a tax-exempt nonprofit corporation that has filed a Form 990, 990-EZ, 990-N, or 990-PF with the IRS for 3 consecutive years, and which has been categorized in one or more "international" National Taxonomy of Exempt Entities (NTEE) codes by the IRS.
